Remembrance Day, 1932.

The service at Knox United Church on Sunday evening next, Nov. 13th, will be a fitting climax to this year's "Remembrance Day" celebrations.

The service has been planned to enable us to recall the fateful years of 1914-1918, when our people gave and suffered the utmost for the highest, and especially to commemorate those who laid down their lives to preserve for us all the deep and high and precious things which alone make life worth living. The two minutes' silence will be observed and the beautiful commemoration hymn, "O Valiant Hearts," will be sung. In the sermon the minister will endeavor to give the message for us in these difficult days, which is wrapped up in the sacrifice of those who died, for, "They being dead, yet speak!"

The Rev. A. J. Mitchell, Hon. Chaplain to the Didsbury Legion, will have charge of the service.

All are heartily invited to join in this memorial service.

C.G.I.T. Joint Banquet And Affiliation Service

Friday, Nov. 4th the C.G.I.T. groups held their first joint banquet and affiliation service.

The Cheery Chums had the table very tastefully set by 6 p.m., the appetizing kitchen smells quickly bringing twenty girls with their leaders, also Mrs. Hartman, of Olds, Mrs. Hilgert and Miss Griffiths to their places at the table.

After a delicious repast, the many voices blended in a sing-song ably led by Mrs. Boorman. The next half-hour was spent in several lively games introduced by Miss Black. This was followed by an open meeting at 8 o'clock. With Mrs. Hilgert at the piano the girls filed up to the front of the auditorium, singing the first verse of "Follow the Glean." Mrs. Boorman led the worship service, assisted by Jessie Topley, Grace Loader and Winnie Adshad.

Mrs. Hartman gave a splendid explanation of the meaning of the affiliation with the W.M.S. and gave a practical meaning to the pledge given by Miss Black.

Miss Griffiths gave a talk about some of the missions she had visited in Saskatchewan and northern Alberta, also the work being done by the W.M.S. in foreign countries. Those who missed hearing and meeting Miss Griffiths, missed something really worth while.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Hartman and Miss Griffiths, by Lorraine Durrer, Annetta Shiels and Rev. A. J. Mitchell. The girls then formed a circle, sang "Taps," and marched out of the church, singing the second verse of "Follow the Glean."

The Shipmates quickly set things to rights in the basement and everyone went home having enjoyed a pleasant and worth-while evening.

Steam Engine For Aeroplane

New Type Of Flying Machine To Be Tested

Harold C. Johnston, proprietor of an Akron, Ohio, welding shop, opened the doors of his small plant and disclosed a steam aeroplane engine which he tuned up to 1,500 revolutions per minute.

Johnston a builder of his own aeroplane designs, said he had spent nine months in developing the engine after a "plane accident more than a year ago had caused him to seek a way of eliminating the fire hazard in aviation.

Weighing only 168 pounds, exclusive of the propeller, the engine will develop 62 horse-power.

The engine is to be installed within a few weeks in a small plane and flown to the Pacific Coast.

"I want to tell you how I got acquainted with Diamond Tints," says a cordial letter from a Windsor woman. "I was in the drug store and saw some attractive Diamond Tint packages. The druggist told me they were for tinting light shades without boiling. He said they were made by the Diamond Dyes people. I have always used Diamond Dyes for dyeing dark colours and know they are the best dye made. When I saw Diamond Tints I thought of a 2-year old dress which I had to quit wearing because it was so faded. I got a package and gave my dress the silvering yellow. I have laundered it several times but have never had to re-dye. It certainly holds the colour. I'm perfectly delighted with my new dress, as I call it, and my husband says it's the prettiest one I have."

DIAMOND TINTS AT ALL STORES

Will Hurt U.S. Trade

Economic Conference Agreements Will Affect American Exports

Export of food products from the United States to the United Kingdom will probably be affected to the tune of $120,786,000 annually by the agreements reached at the Imperial Economic Conference between the United Kingdom and the Dominions, says the Journal of Commerce, New York.

Pointing out the effect of the agreements on United States products is problematical and probably impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty. The paper states a compilation of export values of the foodstuffs affected for the past five years led to the above valuation.

Ready-Made Medicine. You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles, it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores and the like it is an unquestionable healer. It needs no technical skill other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

Old Legend Revived

Human Skeleton Discovered In Gravel Pit In Ohio

An old legend that two men hid their bones in 1810 while walking through an unexplored forest to New Knoxville, Ohio, has been revived with the finding of a human skeleton in a gravel pit near that town.

According to the story, the men starved to death and their bodies, found months afterward, were buried near the spot where the bones were found.

Complaint From Farmers

Farmers in various sections of southern Alberta are complaining to the Dominion Government regarding distribution of seed last spring. They declare the seed was of poor quality and that the cost was too great for them to bear. The farmers also maintain the seed arrived too late in the season.

A Lost Island

Scientists Searching For Tiny Dot Of Land In The Pacific

Sarah Ann, much to the consternation of the astronomical world, has disappeared and, it is feared, drowned. Just a pin-point (speckle) on the broad face of the Pacific, Sarah Ann was—and maybe is the tiniest sort of an uninhabited island.

This Cinderella of the sea was last reported alive some 15 years ago. Then of no value to anyone and avoided by ship captains, she has become today a spot of great importance. If she can be located, many scientists want a date five years from now.

The reason for the sudden popularity arises from efforts to calculate the course of the 1937 eclipse.

It has been found that on June 28, 1937, the sun will be eclipsed totally by the moon for about seven minutes. In all the Pacific, Sarah Ann was the only reported spot of land suitable for observation in the 5,000-mile long, 120-mile wide band of totality.

Unless Sarah Ann can be found, it is possible a coral reef may be built up to island status for the seven minutes.

Testing Wheat Samples

Meeting Held In Winnipeg Of National Research Council

The question of testing samples of hard red spring wheats, received for exhibition at the World Grain Exhibition to be held at Regina next year, was dealt with at the annual meeting of the associate committee on grain research of the National Research Council held in Winnipeg.

L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist and chairman of the awards committee of the world show, introduced the question. After full discussion, it was decided milling and baking tests need only be applied to the limited number of exhibits remaining after other recognized methods of judging had been applied.

Various technical reports were delivered at the final session of the annual meeting and it was decided to meet in Winnipeg again in April, 1937.

Finest Turkeys Are Produced In Canada

Shippers Look For Good Christmas Market In Great Britain

During the next two months one of the finest crops of turkeys in the long and successful history of turkey raising in Canada will find its way to market. A long and favourable growing season for the young birds has been followed by an abundant grain harvest. As farmers from Prince Edward Island on the east to the coastal region of British Columbia on the west start feeding some of this grain to give the birds the proper proportions of flesh and fat the cool invigorating climate of the Canadian autumn and early winter will give the meat that delectable taste and flavour that is found only in birds produced in Canadian latitudes.

The Canadian turkey season is officially inaugurated on Thanksgiving Day. In 1931 for the first time and again this year Thanksgiving came a month earlier than previously. Turkey growers adjusted their operations to take care of the change, however, and large quantities of early hatched birds were made available for the Thanksgiving trade.

Canada hopes this year to place freshly killed Canadian turkeys for the Christmas trade in the British Isles. The knowledge that Canadian turkeys are unsurpassed in quality and flavour lead Canadian shippers to believe that their product should find a ready market in Britain at Christmas. There is, as well, one other distinct advantage which Canadian turkeys enjoy in export trade. Canada is the only country in the world which offers an official system of quality grading with inspection of shipments before export to make sure that they are equal to the quality represented.

If present plans materialize British consumers will be offered during the Christmas season large framed birds from Canada, well covered with the luscious meat of northern grown turkeys. On the breast of each bird will be a small, attractive sticker showing plainly the grade of the bird according to the Canadian Government standards—red for first grade, blue for second and yellow for third. Consumers soon become accustomed to associating the coloured stickers or tags with birds of the different grades.

Many children die from the assaults of worms, and the first care of mothers should be to see that their infants are free from these pests. A verminage that can be depended on is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only expel worms from the system, but act as a health-giving medicine and a remedy for many of the ailments that beset infants, enfeebling them and endangering their lives.

Pigeon Racing Popular

An idea of the popularity of pigeon racing in Great Britain can be gathered from the fact that there are 10,000,000 trained homing pigeons in the country and prize-money amounts to $1,250,000 annually. During one season each of the four British railways groups will carry about 2,500,000 pigeons in special coaches to various parts of the country for liberation.

Don't be without Douglas' Egyptian Liniment. Keep it always handy. Relieves Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, sore throats, quinsy, and croup. Invaluable for burns, sores, Bursitis, Itch and Ringworm.

Will Try Again

When the sunken "Bright Fan's" crew was landed at Churchill, Bertram Barker, 41, prospector, said he intended to make another try and get to Britain via the Hudson Bay route. He was on the "Bright Fan" when it hit an iceberg.

"Did she? I expect she told you merely what was the truth. I went to see her because she had assured me that she could stop your marriage with Tormarin; could interfere in some way to prevent it. That was why I went to France. . . . But when she told me her blackguardly scheme—how she had planned and plotted to conceal the fact that Tormarin's wife was alive—and why she had done it, I would have no hand in anything that followed. I'm no saint—a brief, ironical smile flitted across his face—"but there are some methods at which even I draw the line."

"So—that was why you stayed away?"

"That was why. I wanted you, Jean—God only knows how I wanted you!—but I couldn't try to force your hand at such a time. I couldn't profit by a damnable scheme like that."

Jean's eye's grew soft as she realized that beneath all the impetuous arrogance and dominant demands of the man's temperament there lay something fine and clean and straight—difficult to get at, perhaps, but which could yet rise, in answer to a sense of honor and fairness with which she had not credited him, and take command of his spite and pride. "I'm glad—glad you didn't come, Geoffrey," she said gently. "Glad you—couldn't."

"I don't know that I'm glad about it," he returned with a grim candour. "I simply couldn't do it, and that's all there is to it. But I've come now, Jean. I've come because I want you to give me just the right to look after you. I'm not asking for anything. I only want to serve you—if you'll let me—just to be near you. If Tormarin were free, I would not have come to you again. I know I should have no chance. But he's not free. Does that give me a chance, Jean? If it doesn't, I'll take myself off—I'll never bother you again. I'll try Africa—a big game shooting—with a short laugh. "But if it does—"

He paused and waited for her answer. The intensity longing in his eyes was the sole indication of the emotion that stirred within him—an emotion held in check by a stern self-control that seemed to Jean to be part of this new, changed lover of hers. Surely, in the months which had elapsed since she had fled from him to Dartmoor, he had fought with his devil and cast them out!

She held out her hands to him. "Geoffrey, I'm so sorry but I'm afraid it doesn't. I wish I wish I could give you any other answer. But, you see, it isn't marrying—it's love that matters. And all my love is given."

He took her hands in his and held them gently with what strange, new restraint he seemed to have learned. "I see," he said slowly. Then for a moment his calm wavered. The underlying passion, so strongly held in leash, shook the even tones of his voice. "Tormarin is a lucky man—in spite of everything! I'd give my soul to have what he has—your love, Jean."

His big hands closed round her slight ones and he lifted them to his lips. Then, without another word, he went away, and Jean was left wondering sorrowfully why the love that she did not want was offered her in such full measure, hers to take at will, while the love for which she craved, the love which would have meant the glory and fulfillment of life itself, was denied her—shut away by all the laws of God and Man.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Reunion

Jean leaned joy against the ancient wall which bounded the stone-paved court at Bernfels and looked down towards the valley below.

Spring was in the air—like a comet to this eastern corner of Europe—but, at last, even here the fragrance of fresh growing things was permeating the atmosphere, strips of vivid blue rent the grey skies and glimmers of golden sunshine lay dappled over the shining roofs of the village that nestled in the valley.

But no responsive light had lit itself in Jean's wistful eyes. She was out of tune with the season, Spring and hope go hand in hand, the one symbolical of the other, and the promise of spring-time, the blossom of hope, was dead within her heart—withered almost before it had had time to bud.

The months she had quitted England had sufficed to blunt the keen edge of her pain, but always she was conscious of a dull, unending ache—a corroding sense of the uselessness and emptiness of life.

Yet she had learned to be thankful for even this much respite from the piercing agony of the first few weeks which she had spent at Bernfels. Whatever the coming years might bring her of relief from pain, or even of some modicum of joy, those weeks when she had suffered the torments of the damned would remain stamped indelibly upon her memory.

During the last days at Charnwood she had been keyed up to a high pitch of endurance by the very magnitude of the renunciation she had made. It seems as though, when the soul strains upwards to the accomplishment of some deed that is almost beyond the power of weak human nature to achieve, the conscience is vouchsafed for the time being, a merciful oblivion to the immensity of pain involved. A transport of spiritual fervour lifts the martyr beyond any ordinary recognition of the physical fire that burns and chars his flesh, and some such ecstasy of sacrifice had supported Jean through the act of abnegation by which she had surrendered her love, and with it her life's happiness, at the foot of the stern altar of Duty.

Afterwards had followed the preparations and bustle of departure, the necessary arrangements to be made and telegraphed to Bernfels, and finally the long journey across Europe and the hundred and one small details that required settlement before she and Claire were fully installed at Bernfels and the wheels of the household machinery running smoothly.

But when all this was accomplished, when the need to arrange and plan and make decisions had gone by and her mind was free to concern itself again with her own affairs, then Jean realized the full price of her renunciation.

And she paid it. In days that were an endless procession of anguished hours; in sleepless nights that were a mental and physical torment of unbearable longing such as she had never dreamed of; in tears and in dumb, helpless silences, she paid it. And at last, out of those racked and tortured weeks she emerged into a numb, listless capacity to pick up once more the torn and mutilated threads of life.

Looking backward, she marvelled at the wonderful patience with which

Claire had borne with her, at the selfish way in which she had devoted all her energies to ministering to one who was suffering from heart-sickness—that most wearying of all complaints to the sufferer's friends because so difficult of comprehension by those not similarly afflicted.

Nick's "pale gold narcotics!" To Jean, who had clung to her, helped inexpressibly by her tranquil, steadfast, unswerving faith and loving-kindness, it seemed as though the staunch and sturdy oak were a more appropriate metaphor in which to express the soul of Claire.

She heard her now, coming with light steps across the court. She rarely left Jean brooding long alone these days, exercising all her tact and ingenuity to devise some means by which she might distract her thoughts when she could see they had slipped back into the past.

Jean turned to greet her with a faint smile.

"Well, my good angel? Come to rout me out? I suppose"—teasingly—"you want me to ride down to the village and bring back two lemons urgently demanded by the cook?"

Claire laughed a little. Many had been the transparent little devices she had employed to beguile Jean into the saddle, knowing well that once she was on the back of her favorite mare the errand which was the ostensible purpose of the occasion would quite probably be entirely forgotten. But Jean would return from a long ride over the beloved hills and valleys that had been familiar to her from childhood with a faint colour in her pale cheeks and with the shadow in her eyes a little lightened. There is no cure for sickness of the soul like the big, open spaces of the earth and God's clean winds and sunlight.

"No," said Claire, "it's not lemons this time."

"Then what is it?" demanded Jean. "You didn't come out here just to look at the view. There's an air of importance about you."

It was true. Claire wore a little fluttering aspect of excitement. The colour came and went swiftly in her cheeks, and her eyes had a bright, almost dazzled look, while a small anxious frown kept appearing between her pretty brows. She regarded Jean uncertainly.

"Well, yes, it is something," she acknowledged. "I had a letter from Lady Anne this morning."

Alberta News Letter.

Issued By Publicity Commissioner, Edmonton.

Provincial Championships Championships for the province in three different projects of junior farm club work were decided at Edmonton last Friday and Saturday when contests were held to decide upon the teams to go to Toronto to take part in the Canadian-wide contests. The championship team in grain club work was from Willingdon, Geo. Feduk and Geo. Shevchuk.
These winning teams will compete with teams from other provinces in the same projects at Toronto during the July 1-4 Fair. Of the grain and livestock club teams, 20, with 35 clubs in livestock work.

Opportunities for Alta. Exhibitors.

The possibility of Alberta exhibitors in seed grains bringing home to the province a considerable sum of money in prizes within the next few months, is stressed by E. L. Gray, provincial field crops commissioner.
Mr. Gray points out that with the Alberta Provincial seed fair, the Chicago International grain show, the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, and the World's Grain Congress at Regina next July, totalling in prize money in seed grains more than $58,000, there should be a possibility of Alberta capturing the larger share of this money. Preparations are now under way for Toronto and Chicago, where most of Alberta's well-known seed grain exhibitors will be showing, and also for the Regina congress, for which entries close January 31. In this world show, all the old Alberta exhibitors and many new ones, including a large class of junior farmers, will be prominent with exhibits.

Alberta at Chicago and Toronto

Some 13 carloads of high-class livestock, together with a large group of exhibits in poultry, seed grain and grasses, will go forward from Alberta this week to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto, thus keeping up the province's reputation for showing up prominently in this huge annual event. The provincial government, together with the federal government, are paying freight on six selected carloads of stock, the balance of the expenses being borne by the private interests concerned. The provincial government pays 25 per cent and the federal government 75 per cent.
All classes are fairly well filled by Alberta exhibitors, especially the junior grain classes. Livestock from the government and university farms, and such private exhibitors as the McIntyre Ranch, Collicutt Ranch,
E.P. Ranch, C.P.R. Farms, Dr.
Hays, of Calgary, Robert Ball, of Edmonton, and others, will be shown.
Last year Alberta captured a total of 295 prizes, including 25 championships and 79 firsts.

Schools of Agriculture

After mature consideration the provincial department of agriculture will again operate two schools of agriculture: Olds and Vermilion.
For some years these have been the only two schools in operation. The registration this year has reached 182 at Vermilion and more than 100 at Olds, with prospects of several more at each school before the term has been advanced. The registration is fairly well up to last year.

Decrease in Radio Licenses

A slight decrease in radio licenses is shown in the figures issued recently from Ottawa, which state that Alberta has this year 26,401 licenses, compared with 27,401 last year. The city of Edmonton has shown an increase of about 1,000.

Low Deathrate

Alberta is credited with one of the lowest deathrates in Canada, according to the Ottawa bureau of statistics' figures. Saskatchewan, Ontario and Alberta are in the order named in this respect, Alberta's rate being only 51.9 per 100,000.

Average Wheat Yield

Alberta's average wheat yield this year will again lead other provinces by a considerable margin. The estimated average this year for Alberta is 20 bushels per acre, compared with an estimated average of 18.4 bushels in Saskatchewan and 17.4 in Manitoba.

School Fairs, 1932

Concluding 16 years of development, school fairs in Alberta had a very successful season in 1932. The first school fair was held in 1916, with one small district centre in Olds. Under the direction of the provincial departments of agriculture and education, school fairs have grown to be an important factor in rural community development, and total of 139 fairs are now held, with more than 35,000 rural school children participating, and showing something like 160,000 exhibits.

What The Census Tells.

Statistics are generally regarded as dry and uninteresting. But to those who make a study of them as they relate to matters of vital importance to the welfare of the human family they become of absorbing interest. In fact, a knowledge and understanding of the statistical position of many matters are essential to a true grasp of such matters, and where it is possible to present such information to people in the form of charts and graphs they tell a story which mere words could never convey.

Within recent months the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which, by the way, is one of the best organized and most efficient departments of the Ottawa public service, has issued a large number of bulletins presenting the facts ascertained in the decennial census-taking last year, and which are worthy of study and consideration by the Canadian people. They indicate what progress has been made where it has been made, and wherein as a people we have slipped a bit backward or remained stationary.

Some things stand out as worthy of note. We learn, for example, that Canada's population increased by 1,588,837 in the ten year period, 1921-31, or slightly over 18 per cent., which is 2 per cent. higher than the United States, a very healthy and substantial growth, and that the four Western provinces continued proportionately to increase in numbers more rapidly than the five Eastern provinces. Not so satisfactory from the standpoint of the nation as a whole is the discovery that whereas the population of our cities, towns and villages increased by 1,219,936, or 28 per cent., our rural population only increased by 268,901, or slightly over 8 per cent., with the result that whereas our rural population in 1921 exceeded the urban by 83,690, the urban now exceeds the rural by over 767,000.

It is interesting, too, to learn that of Canada's total population of 10,276,786, no less than 8,069,288, or 77 1/2 per cent., are native born Canadians, while a further 1,814,539, or 11 1/2 per cent., were born elsewhere under the British flag, leaving less than 11 per cent. of other than British birth.

Classified by religious denominations, the fact emerges that Roman Catholics constitute the largest single denomination with 4,098,546 adherents, the United Church coming second with 2,016,597, Anglicans third with 1,635,321, and Presbyterians fourth with 870,482. Not one of the remaining 27 denominations listed reach 500,000.

Canada's population consists of 5,374,541 males and 5,002,245 females, and the number of males predominate in every one of the nine provinces. There are, of course, more single than married persons, because of the large number of children, but the percentage of single to married is steadily decreasing, single persons constituting only 57.35 per cent. of the population in 1931, as compared with 61.67 per cent. in 1901, while married persons increased from 34.13 per cent. in 1901, to 38.27 per cent. in 1931. The number of widowed remained about the same, but the number of divorced rose from 661, or .01 per cent. in 1901, to 7,441 or .07 per cent. in 1931.

When we turn to the bulletin on the literacy of the people, a most encouraging picture is presented. It shows that a steadily increasing percentage of our people five years of age and over can both read and write, and taking Canada as a whole no less than 92.34 per cent. can do so compared with 90.00 per cent. only ten years ago. That this progress will be continued is made evident by the statistics of school attendance which reveals the encouraging fact that, whereas the increase in population between the ages of 5 and 24 years in the ten year period, 1921-1931, was 1,960 per cent., the percentage increase at school was 25.82 per cent. Better than one out of every five persons living in Canada is attending school.

Analyzing the economic position so far as agriculture is concerned, it is revealed that, were it not for substantial increases in many departments in the three prairie provinces, Canada would have had to report a decided slipping back during the past ten years. There are, for example, 336,000 fewer horses on Canadian farms than in 1921, but this is accounted for by the introduction of automobiles and tractors. The number of cows in calf or in milk only increased by 281,000, and actually decreased in the Maritime provinces; other cattle were fewer in number by 642,000, every province except Quebec and British Columbia reporting decreases; sheep increased by 422,000, but again decreases took place in all provinces east of the Ottawa River; swine, on the other hand, showed the substantial increase of 1,343,000, only Nova Scotia and Ontario reporting small decreases; poultry jumped over 288,375,000 with all provinces sharing in the gain.

The number of farms in Canada is greater by 17,574 than ten years ago, there being fewer in the east and more in the west. Farms are also becoming larger, the average size in 1921 being 224 acres as compared with 105 acres in 1921. The acreage in occupied farms increased by 22,680,000 acres, while improved land in these occupied farms rose by over 15,000,000 acres.

On the other hand, the value of farm lands decreased by $84,409,709 and farm buildings by $11,171,360, all provinces reporting drops in land values, and the eastern provinces, except Prince Edward Island, decreases in value of buildings, while Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia reported increases.

There was, however, a marked improvement in farm comforts, conveniences and equipment, including automobiles, machinery of various kinds, gas and electric light, radios, telephones, water piped into farm homes, improvement in roads, and shortening of distances to market and railway towns.

Graf Zeppelin Makes Record

Cost Of Ten Trips Reduced To Approximately $300 Per Mile

In completing ten trips across the Atlantic from Germany to Brazil this season, the Graf Zeppelin has made a record that astonishes even her backers. Instead of costing almost $30,000 a crossing, as had been expected, the expenses of the journey have been reduced to $16 per mile. It is said, or approximately $3 a mile. The present charge for passage is $470, only a third more than steamer fare, while the time of transit is reduced from 12 days to three.

Hint For The Housewife

Easy Way To Liquify Jam That Has Hardened

If jam left from a previous season has become hard and sugary it need not be thrown away or reserved exclusively for cooking purposes. Fill a large earthenware bowl with cold water, and after removing the jam-pot covers, stand the pots in the cold water, placing the bowl in a fairly hot oven. After a time the jam will become liquid, and when it has cooled down it will be found that no hard lumps of sugar remain and the jam is as delicious as ever.

Skeleton Of Soldier

Found In Quebec

Believed To Have Been In Ground Since 1633

A skeleton believed to be that of a young French soldier killed while defending the city against an Iroquois attack on August 23, 1633, has been unearthed by workmen excavating in the heart of Old Quebec.

A brass plate, a leather-covered scabbard, a leather-bound book, a soldier's regiment number, a container made of bark and some small pieces of cloth were found near the bones.

HER HAND FELT DEAD

Helpless With Rheumatism

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But "a blessing" in the form of Kruschen Sals—put her right again.

"I was sure in a bad state," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework. I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I could not sleep at nights, and had to get up and heat water to ease my pain and numbness. I took all kinds of medicines. I rubbed it and plastered it—but it was still there. I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor could I sew a button on. My arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and am so thankful for the blessings I have received in Kruschen. Now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruschen's help and relief."

(Mrs. J. H. H.) The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy regular action; assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of all rheumatic suffering. Strange Survival Of Seeds

Flowers Grow First Year After Woodlands Are Cut

In this country and doubtless in others as well, whenever a wood on a hillside is cut down the following year that hillside is one blaze of foxgloves, though none was visible or standing when the wood was standing. When, as during the war, large woodlands were cut down the blaze of color, extending sometimes for miles, was a fine sight. Now comes the strange part. After so fine a crop of foxgloves one would expect a still finer crop the following year; but no, the succeeding year the crop is not more than half and in about half a dozen years they disappear altogether. Where do the original seeds come from? Have they lain dormant for a few centuries? J. H. Howell in the London Times.

One Little Incident

Easy To Understand Why Prince Of Wales Is Popular

An article in the Christian Science Monitor says the Prince of Wales has replaced one retiring Sicily Island farmer with two unemployed Welsh miners and has sent an expert from his Duchy of Cornwall to teach them the intricacies of agriculture. Meanwhile, since they have been taken off the date, he is paying them from his own pocket until their first crops are harvested. It is little incidents like this one that continue to send our estimate of His Royal Highness still higher.

Employer: "I'll give you a position as clerk to start with, and pay you what you are worth. Is that satisfactory?"

Recent College Graduate: "Oh, certainly, but—er—do you think you could afford it?"

A Retarding Influence

Right Economy When Not Necessary Does Much Harm

All over the province the high schools and collegiate institutes are trying to cut down expenses. In fact all over the province everybody is trying to cut down expenses, even those who have no reason at all for doing so. People who have their 1928 incomes are pinching like the rest. This retarding of expenses, this refraining from buying anything that can be done without retards the return of business activity. And yet a force like this operates inevitably and no argument can prevail against it.—Toronto Star.

Unprofitable Practices Followed On Farms Causes Heavy Losses Which Could Easily Be Avoided

While many unprofitable practices are followed on farms throughout the country there would appear to be three that are outstanding that should long ago have been corrected, observes J. B. Spencer, Director of Publicity, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. These practices are the thick sowing of corn for a fodder crop; the rotting down of farmyard manure; and the carrying on of dairy farming with cows the production of which is not determined by modern methods.

It is many years since it became generally understood that the thick planting of corn not only wasted seed, but resulted in a crop of low feeding value. It has long been demonstrated and the information made public that farmyard manure loses value about at the same rate as it loses weight, still these two practices are permitted to cause heavy losses amongst particularly the class of farmers who can ill afford the waste that is incurred.

It is advised as these practices are there is perhaps more excuse for them than that of feeding, housing and milking cows that give so little as not to pay their own way in the herd. Testing of cows for production by simple and sure methods has been long carried on in this country, and thousands of herds have been built up to a profitable rate of production. Owners of hundreds of thousands of cows and thousands of herds have not taken advantage of this service, and are each year helping to depress the farming industry. According to the latest issued report of the Federal Minister of Agriculture thirty thousand cows, representing three thousand three hundred herds, were tested, within the past fiscal year under the Live Stock Branch cow testing policy, which operates in all the provinces except British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Ontario. That is to say, of the more than 1,500,000 cows, trouble was taken to weigh and test the milk of only 30,000 during sufficient of their lactation period to indicate the returns they were making through the milk-pail. Of this number 13,180 cows averaged 5,810 pounds of milk, containing 230.77 pounds of butterfat; 2,330 cows gave 300 pounds of butterfat and upwards. Three of the herds averaged more than 500 pounds of butterfat and 28 averaged 400 per cow.

The discovery by testing of the actual production of cows usually leads to several advanced steps in farming practice. The unprofitable producers are no longer maintained in the herd, and the better cows are given greater care. More suitable and heavier yielding feeds are grown, and improvement by the use of better sires is at once commenced.

To assist farmers in having their herds tested upwards of twenty dairy promoters are employed by the Federal Department of Agriculture in encouraging and helping in the testing and recording of herds within cow testing associations of which there were 261 operating in the provinces of Alberta, Manitoba, Quebec and the three maritime provinces. The Live Stock Branch at Ottawa is ready to assist and direct dairy farmers in utilizing modern methods in determining whether or not the cows are producing milk in profitable quantities.

Share Renting Of Farms

Helpful Circular Prepared At Ontario Agricultural College

An excellent circular containing a brief but comprehensive discussion of the principles and conditions of share renting of farms has just been prepared by Department of Agricultural Economics at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Anyone interested may secure a copy by writing to that department.

Two main plans of rental are set forth, namely crop-share renting and live-stock and crop-share renting. Many modifications of these are suggested and discussed. Tables are given showing satisfactory proportional division of expenditures and returns as between landlord and tenant, under varying conditions of soil fertility, buildings and equipment, and market facilities. The circular also contains a form of agreement which should prove very useful, both to tenants and to those who have farms to rent, in helping to avoid some of the pitfalls common with loosely stated or with unwritten agreements.

Cost Of High Schools

Free Secondary Education For Every Body Is Becoming Expensive

The outcry against the unprecedented cost of high school increases day by day, and the attack centres pretty much around one point.

The question at issue is this, says a writer in Toronto Saturday Night: "Can we afford free secondary education for everybody?" As long as only a small proportion of children presented themselves for it the question did not rise. Now, with half of all children appearing in high school—very much more than half in cities—it forces itself upon us. If all of the youth attempting it were capable of benefiting from it it might be a good investment. This may be something of what a leading English educationalist has in mind when he tells us that in the old land they cannot afford it, neither can we, but we do not realize it." South Daily Star.

The Other Side

As the Ottawa Journal remarks, the subject of dogs is a "rickish one." To most of us, on occasion, dogs are a nuisance, but there is another side to it. There is the boy-and-his-dog side; the nondescript little animal, a nuisance to some, perhaps, but to the boy a companion to be fought for and protected. Let us not forget the boy's side of the question; to him it means a very great deal.

Canes are again in vogue in England.

Spanish Apiarist Has Evolved A Plan To Greatly Increase The Production Of Honey

Russia's Five-Year

Plan Near Failure

Production Dropped Off This Year Instead Of Increasing

Complete production figures for the first seven months of the current year indicate practically the end of the Soviet hope to complete the five-year program for basic industries like ferrous metals, coal, transportation and agriculture in four years.

The production figures showed that industry gained 17 per cent. over the corresponding seven months of 1931, but this was less than half of the 36 per cent. growth set for the year with the view of completing the five-year program.

Industrial growth may if sharp improvement is achieved in the final part of 1932, reach 20 or 22 per cent., which is about the average for recent years. But this would be still far short of the Soviet goal and leave the "plankton" unfinished.

The most disturbing element in the statistical picture for the seven months of 1932 is the fact that the output in leading industries has been declining rather than increasing. After a fairly good start in January and February, production slumped gradually as food and transport difficulties pile up.

Generator Used Again

After Fifty Years

First To Furnish Commercial Power For Electric Light

Although the hand of the master inventor was not there to help, Old Jumbo No. 9, the first generator power for electric light, came to life recently at Henry Ford's Greenfield Village. The occasion was the dedication in New York of a plaque at the site of the old Pearl St. station which housed the generator 50 years ago.

As the old generator, rebuilt and housed in the Ford museum, swung into action a description of the scene was conveyed to the New York dedicatory group by radio.

Alex Dow, now president of the Detroit Edison Company, handled the valve wheel. He recalled that when Thomas A. Edison first turned on the generator and provided electric light to 400 New York homes, he was studying under a flickering lamp light in Liverpool. As Dow turned the valve, the same one Edison had handled a half-century ago, the old generator, sire to all the great power plants of today, leaped into action and current went through the circuits to light a dozen old-fashioned light bulbs.

Working on the theory that the busy bee still can be kept busier, Don Jose Rovira Mari has invented a hive which may revolutionize the bee industry.

Senior Rovira is an experienced beekeeper at Benifayo, in Valencia. After perfecting his new device and becoming convinced that the productivity of the bees can in some cases be increased 100 per cent., he has demonstrated his apparatus at the museum of natural sciences, Madrid, where it created a good impression.

The basic principle of the new hive is the simplification of the bee's labors so that it can dedicate more of its energy toward the business of making honey. The apparatus is known as the "fountain-hive," for to extract honey, all that is necessary is to perform a simple operation with a device that Rovira has invented, and then open a spout through which the honey flows out.

All of this is accomplished without disturbing the bees, and in this manner all the complicated procedure of the old style beekeeping is eliminated. "Furthermore," he explained, "the 'fountain-hive' enables us to incite the bees to more work. In the springtime, when there is plenty of nectar in the flowers, their capacity for making honey is greatly increased. In order to utilize this potential capacity all one has to do is drain off the honey, and they will then begin to produce more."

"And, in view of the fact that the honeycomb is practically undisturbed, the energies which the bees would otherwise have to be constantly making to create a new comb are economized, and can be devoted to the task of producing more honey. Or, in the case of the bee raiser who buys manufactured combs, the new process eliminates the necessity for purchasing them."

Of course, as things are at present, many persons desire to buy their honey in the comb, in order to be sure of its purity. But when the public learns that the product of the "fountain-hive" is guaranteed to be extracted without the necessity of having to touch the comb at all or of righting the bees away by smoke at some other method, and instead is obtained by simply turning a key and letting it run out in all its purity, without any pollen or other matter, they will be reassured of its quality.

"There are many incidental advantages of the new invention," Rovira added, "one of them being that there is no necessity for ever infuriating the bees. When under the present system, the beekeeper goes out to rot the bees, he is well protected by a net around his face, and gloves, but the infuriated bees go as far as (two) kilometers away and sting other persons who do not happen to have a net around their faces. Under this new system they are never molested, and hence are perfectly happy, and for that reason, they produce more."

Rovira has made a life study of bees. He long ago became convinced that they are more intelligent than man, and that man, in utilizing the activities of the bee, was not getting as much results as might be accomplished, for the very fact that certain rather unnatural elements were adopted by the bee industry.

Mrs. Smith (showing portrait of herself on her mother's arm): "This is how I looked twenty years ago."
Guest: "Wonderful! And who is the baby on your arm?"

"The lady complains that you showed her no courtesy!"

"But, sir, I showed her everything we had in the shop." Vart Hem, Stockholm.

IS THE UNITED STATES PRESIDENT AN ENGLISHMAN?

It has been disclosed that not long ago a great deal of research was made by officials in the Town Clerk's Department of the Town of Kensington, England, to find out whether or not President Hoover was ever a British subject. The period of the search covered the years between and including 1911 and 1915. The inquiries related to the United States President, who many years ago lived at the "Red House," in Horton Street, Kensington. No official information has been given concerning the result of the search. Above is a picture of the entrance to "Red House," while inset is a good photograph of President Hoover.

Westcott Notes.

The October meeting of Westcott W.L. was held at the home of Mrs. H. Goetjen, and despite the disagreeable day a good crowd was present. Arrangements were made for the annual bazaar, which is to be held November 18 in the Westcott school at 8 p.m. There will be a sale of articles for the grown-ups and a fishpond for the kiddies. A good program and a lunch will be provided for all. The admission will be 25c for adults and children under 15 free. The articles which were to have been judged last month, were judged, the prizes going to Mrs. E. Klinski and Mrs. D. Klinski. A reading by Mrs. Ray, and a contest were enjoyed by all, after which the meeting closed in the usual manner, lunch being served by the hostess. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. S. Owen.

RUGBY NOTES

The monthly meeting of Rugby W.L. was held at the home of Mrs. A. Wahl. There was a very small attendance, and it is wondered if the missing members had a lapse of memory that day and that it will have returned before next month. After business was finished, parts of the annual report of the provincial organization were taken up and discussed. The members are hoping to have some exhibits for the A.W.L. handicrafts competition at the provincial convention next year. The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem, and lunch was served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Krebs, and being the annual business meeting, all members are asked to be present.

Elkton Notes.

Miss Winifred Hogg was visiting at her home on Sunday.

We hear that one of the young men of the district had a bad attack of buck fever Saturday afternoon.

Very little threshing has been done so far at Elkton. Some of the farmers have been turning stooks, but Sunday's storm undid all their work.

The dance held in Elkton school Friday night in aid of the children's Christmas tree, was a great success. The school was nicely decorated, the music was good, and there was lots to eat.

Didsbury Chautauqua.

The Didsbury Chautauqua is billed for the four days, Nov. 30, and Dec. 1, 2 and 3. A meeting of the committee is called for Saturday evening to meet the Chautauqua representative.

Town Council Meeting.

A meeting of the town council was held in the secretary's office on Monday evening. Mayor Chambers presided and councillors Adshead, Fisher, Gooder, Pitt, and Spence were present.

Rev. A. Traub appeared before the council and asked for a rebate in taxes on behalf of the Mountain View Bible School. It was decided in view of the fact that the school was both an educational and religious institute the taxes should be rebated 50 per cent.

The question of arrears of taxes came in for considerable discussion and the mayor pointed out that unless the arrears were brought down to a reasonable figure the town may find difficulty in financing the necessary overhead of the town. A committee was appointed to go into the question and decide what action should be taken.

It was decided that the town again operate the skating rink and Harry Gabel was appointed as man under the direction of Councillor Fisher.

Dress Your Own Poultry.

Mr. J. Kirby, of the Didsbury Meat Market informs us that the packers object to receiving live poultry this year and will not quote any prices for anything out of the dressed product.

The poultry and live weight is fattened by the buyer before killing. You can save this expense by using your own home-grown grain.

Live poultry must be dressed at some time. If it is done by the buyer it costs him money. You can save this money by doing your own killing.

Shipping charges on the dressed poultry are considerably lower than those for live poultry. By shipping dressed poultry you can make this additional saving.

All poultry should be crated or pen-fattened for at least two weeks before killing.

Call your flock before killing and cut out all thin or immature birds. Prices for poor quality poultry are never good.

Starve your birds 24-hours before killing.

Bleed through the mouth and dry-pick all poultry.

Do not cut off heads or feet and do not remove entrails.

Chill your birds for 24-hours after killing in a temperature around 35-degrees. Do not allow them to freeze.

Wrap all birds in clean paper. Pack your heads in clean paper-lined boxes for shipping.
